

The University of Jordan

School of Engineering

Department of Architecture Engineering

---

MSc. Architecture Engineering

The course has not been introduced before.

0932733      Built Environment and Behaviors      3 credit hours

This course is a study of problems in the built environment including economic, social and ecological issues. The city as a social system. The relationship between people, the built environment and environmental behavior. Environmental perception, interaction between people and the built environment. Stages of human development on the surrounding environment. The impact of urban environment on people and the issue of adaptation and adjustment. Study of some problems related to the use of the built environment.